CAMP is a program of the National Alliance of Preservation Commissions, building strong local preservation programs through education, training, and advocacy since 1983.

CAMP offers high quality, intensive training for preservation commissioners, staff, municipal leaders, land use regulatory boards, environmental commissions and anyone involved with historic preservation at the local level. Topics will include:

- Design Review Exercise
- Preservation Incentives
- Community Engagement and Public Support
- Ethics and the Role of the Commissioner

CAMP COURSE DESCRIPTIONS:

Design Review Exercise

Working in small groups, participants will practice design review with a simplified application and set of design guidelines. Participants will determine what questions they would want to ask of the applicant and explore a potential motion.

Preservation Incentives

The days of grants are essentially gone, so how can commissions assist owners of historic properties? Zoning incentives can be a way to pair the “carrot” with the “stick” without sending cash out the door. Using examples of how other communities have used their ordinance to encourage historic preservation learn how to analyze your community to create your own package of incentives.

Building Public Support

One of the major responsibilities of a historic preservation commissions is to be effective spokesmen for historic preservation in its community. This session helps participants communicate effectively with a wide range of audiences, build support for designations, defend sometimes unpopular decisions and deal with reluctant elected official. Workshop leaders will also offer creative suggestions for promoting preservation in the community.

Ethics and the Role of the Commissioner

This course addresses commissioner responsibilities to the community and to the profession, as well as the standards of professional conduct. The discussion will focus on widely accepted standards and practices for accurate, honest and forthright interactions with other commissioners, elected officials, staff, applicants and the general public.
